STAKEHOLDER ENGAGEMENT ON PARTNERSHIP FUNDING FOR SAFETY TRAINING

FEBRUARY 2023

What We Heard

Summary

The Workers' Safety and Compensation Commission (WSCC) undertook stakeholder engagement in 2022 to gather feedback for improving partnership funding for safety training.

The WSCC provides funding to safety training organizations to ensure that northern workers have improved access to the training they need to work safely.

Results

- 84% believe that the WSCC should be providing funding to safety training organizations.
- 55% of respondents preferred a separate collection method for funding, such as a special levy.
- 54% believed that the WSCC should fund less than 50% of an organization's budget.
- 89% believe that the WSCC should provide some level of oversight.
- A key theme in the survey comments is that training, particularly legislated training, should be available throughout all communities in Nunavut and the Northwest Territories.

WSCC shared this feedback with the Governance Council in September 2022. A final decision on how to proceed will be made in March 2023.

If you would like a copy of the full What We Heard Report and/or have it in another language, please reach out to Meta Antolin, Manager, Program Development and Stakeholder Engagement, at Meta.Antolin@wscc.nt.ca.